DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. This action is in response to the RCE/amendment filed 11/15/06.

Claim 25 has been amended.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 25 have been considered but are not persuasive. Applicant's amendments have necessitated a new search and new grounds of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 4. Claim 25 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mochizuki (7,020,780) in view of Sims, III (6,550,011) and Shear et al. (2001/0042043). Mochizuki discloses a method of unlocking a locked file stored in mastered pre-recorded portion on a storage medium, wherein both a title key and a cipher key are needed to unlock the locked file, the title key and the cipher key being functionally equivalent to a content key and a complement key, the mastered pre-recorded portion including the title key but not the cipher key, the storage medium also having an writeable area that is writable by a storage engine, the method comprising: receiving a request from a host device at the storage engine to unlock the locked file; providing the storage engine with the cipher key; and writing the cipher key to the writeable area to unlock the file (Abstract; figures 6-7, 9; col. 8, lines 50-66; col. 10, line 26 – col. 11, line 17).

Application/Control Number: 09/940,035

Mochizuki does not disclose authenticating a host device and authenticating the storage engine with a server. Sims discloses a method of unlocking locked content stored in a storage medium including the steps of authenticating a host device (col. 5, lines 39-59; col. 19, lines 29-49) and authenticating the storage engine with a server (col. 17, lines 1-23). It would have been obvious to modify the Mochizuki method to authenticate the host device and authenticate the storage engine with a server, as taught by Sims, in order to verify that the host device and the storage engine are both authorized devices.

Mochizuki discloses that the host device decrypts the file using the key provided by the engine. Mochizuki does not disclose that the engines itself decrypts the file and then provides the decrypted file content to the host. Shear discloses a secure storage engine (i.e., a disk drive) which decrypts file content and provides the decrypted file content to the host wherein decryption keys are never exposed outside of the engine (fig. 4A; paragraphs 0081, 0219, 0250-0252). It would have been obvious to modify the Mochizuki method to such that the engines is a secure engine which decrypts the file and provides the decrypted file content to the host but does not expose the decryption keys outside of the engine, as taught by Shears, in order to provide an additional security layer.

5. Claim 26 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mochizuki in view of Sims and Shear as applied to claim 25 above, and further in view of Menezes et al ("Handbook of Applied Cryptography"). Sims discloses authenticating the host device requiring two passes (i.e., two messages to be transmitted), but Sims does not disclose using one-pass protocol in which a first entity who generates the random session key is also the entity that encrypts the session key with a second entity's public key and transmits the encrypted session key to the second entity participating in a communication session. Menezes discloses using one-pass protocol for transporting a session key and for implicit key authentication (Section 12.5.1, page 507-508). It would have been obvious to modify the combined method of Mochizuki, Sims and Shear to authenticate the host device using one-pass protocol, as taught by Menezes, in order to reduce network traffic.
